

Introduction to HEALTH EMERGENCY RISK COMPLIANCE
in epidemic context

:UNifEC healthby

EIFEC is the International Standards organization for Compliance in areas that are a threat to international security, such as of nuclear, biological and chemical armaments proliferation, Weapons of Mass Destruction (WMD), Sanctions (Export Compliance).

EIFEC has the multidisciplinary knowledge and competence that allows to define and develop, by innovation, Standards, guidelines and certification mechanisms for emergency situations or critical areas of any nature.

HEALTHBY is the collaboration arm of an international consortium of leading EU healthcare institutions, universities professionals.

It aims at delivering strategic advice and project expertise to enable any collaborating institutions to transform healthcare delivery, education and research, and facilitate patient referrals to allow both patients and referring physicians from around the world to access care in one of the member hospitals.

UNIFEC is a strategic alliance network of leading Universities (coordinated by EIFEC).

It aims at promoting a widespread Compliance culture by embedding and integrating at each national level the relevant best practices as well as operational procedures, applying a common risk assessment approach and assessing, promoting and establishing the most appropriate academic/Master courses and training sessions.

The WHO (World Health Organization) has defined the international outbreak of the new Coronavirus, Covid-19, as a Public Health Emergency of International concern, which urges the world to take actions to contain it. Regrettably, the main response to this event resulted in the proliferation of new rules, laws, regulations, best practices and legal sanctions (Regulatory Framework), set by Governments at the beginning of the pandemic but still ongoing, frequently changing and often diverging.

We need a strategic response

Everybody needs to know how to comply with all this. Compliance is a progressive interactive process and the outcome of an organization satisfying needs or expectations that are implied, voluntary or obligatory (requirements).

Compliance is the most crucial procedure for everybody to avoid or mitigate potential legal civil and criminal proceedings in most of the jurisdictions, protect its reputation and foster its values.

The strategic response:

HER-CMS Health Emergency Risk Compliance Management System for all organizations

The present situation requests non only the development of proper emergency practices, policies and procedures, but also to make them certified by accredited qualified third parties.

But Certification entails the provision of a written assurance (the Certificate) that all applicable requirements are met: this needs the existence of a Standard which define the requirements against which the process shall be certified.

For this reasons, EIFEC has developed the new Emergency International Standards series EIFEC ES2001.06:HBV, which helps organizations to be more effective in their fight against Covid-19, and people's everyday lives safer and healthier.

This Series include two different kinds of Standards:

- EIFEC ES2001.06:HBV/HER - Health Emergency Risk Compliance Management System (HER-CMS), which can be adopted and implemented by all organizations
- EIFEC ES2001.06:HBV/SSP - Compliance Management Systems for Sanitization Service Providers (SSP-CMS), reserved to professional Sanitization Service Providers

Both Standards are provided also in a simplified version specially designed for Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises (MSMEs), so to apply in full our philosophy: “Compliance for all”

- Micro, small and medium enterprises, which must take care of their own spaces and have to guarantee at least a sufficiently “clean” environment.
- Sanitization Service Providers
- Auditors and advisory organizations
